The WSU General Counsel has appointed the Office of International Students and Scholars (OISS) to be the only WSU office to file any (WSU) employment-related applications/petitions with U.S. Immigration or any other U.S. government agencies. Thus, hiring an outside attorney by an employee or a department is not permitted. Please contact an OISS scholar advisor to begin the permanent residency process for your foreign national employee as early as possible.

* PERM (the Program Electronic Review Management system) is a new way of filing a permanent labor certification application with the Department of Labor (DOL) to sponsor permanent residency (PR) for foreign national employees. Filing a labor certification is the first step of the three-step PR process.

By filing a labor certification, the employer is asking for a finding by DOL that there are no qualified, willing, able, and available U.S. workers to do the job that the employer is offering to a foreign national and that the employment of an alien will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of similarly employed U.S. workers.

All labor certifications filed with DOL on or after March 28, 2005 must be filed (by the employer) meeting the PERM recruitment requirements. PERM has two tracks: Faculty Special Handling option for university teachers; and standard option for non-teaching faculty and professionals.

Filing a PERM application is a very complicated and complex process, thus please consult with OISS for each individual case as rules and regulations change often. In addition, individual efforts by an employee or department might not meet the PERM requirement. Then, all previous recruiting efforts have been wasted and might not be used for the filing under PERM. Thus, please consult with an OISS scholar advisor in advance.
